

Physical Resources - Clinical Training Sites

Dentistry

The School of Dentistry operates three dental clinics in San Francisco targeting underserved populations, as well as dental clinics in Northern California (Chico, Yuba City, Oroville, Eureka, Redding, Anderson, Susanville, and the Hoopa Indian Reservation in Hoopa); in Sacramento (a Native American clinic); in Oakland (three clinics for Asians, Native Americans, and Latinos/Hispanics); and in Salinas (a Latino/Hispanic clinic).

Medicine

The School of Medicine has a major clinical training site in Fresno, CA, as well as smaller sites in Santa Rosa and Salinas.

Training is also provided at multiple sites in the greater Bay Area, including public and private hospitals and offices, as well as HMOs (e.g., Kaiser) and and Veteran's Administration health centers. Several students have received clinical training in other States and out of the country.

Nursing

The School of Nursing provides training at hundreds of sites throughout California (many being in the greater Bay Area, but spread throughout the State), and has training sites in at least 22 other States (including Alaska, Hawaii, Florida, and Vermont) as well as the District of Columbia. There are two foreign training sites as well.

Pharmacy

The School of Pharmacy has six training sites in California (in Davis/Sacramento, San Francisco, Fresno, South S.F. Bay, LA/Orange County, and San Diego), and is developing a seventh in the North San Francisco Bay region. Students receive clinical training at hospitals, medical centers, poison control centers, pharmacies, and outpatient clinics in these areas. Students have also been able to undertake clinical training abroad.
