

Third Annual UCSF Interprofessional Education Day September 24, 2008

- Today, new students throughout UCSF are coming together to look at the issues of health care disparities and the importance of interprofessional communication and health care teams.
- Come learn how working together for the benefit of our patients begins with learning across our curricula at UCSF.
- “Interprofessional Education Day at UCSF” has been designed to be a part of your regular curriculum and is sponsored and supported by the Schools of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, and Physical Therapy.
- Every student will receive copies of the first two chapters of Dr. Talmadge King's book, Medical Management of Vulnerable Populations as a catalyst for our discussion. Participants will interact with students from all professional schools during the afternoon workshop.

UCSF INTERPROFESSIONAL DAY 2008 PARTICIPANT BIOGRAPHIES

Joe Castro, PHD, is the Associate Vice Chancellor for Student Academic Affairs at the University of California, San Francisco (UCSF). Dr. Castro also serves as Adjunct Professor in the UCSF School of Medicine. For the past 18 years, Dr. Castro has served in a variety of faculty and administrative positions within the UC system at the Berkeley, Davis, Merced, and Santa Barbara campuses as well as at the Office of the President. Most recently, he served as Executive Director of Academic Preparation and Equal Opportunity and Adjunct Associate Professor of Education at UC Santa Barbara. He received an A.B. in political science and M.P.P. in public policy from UC Berkeley and Ph.D. in education from Stanford University.

Kathy Dracup RN, DNSc, FNP, has served as the Dean of the School of Nursing since 2000. She has been an educator, clinician, and researcher at the University of California (UCSF and UCLA) for three decades. Dean Dracup is a Professor and cardiovascular nursing expert and is currently the principal investigator of several multi-site clinical trials funded by NIH.

John Featherstone, Ph.D., professor and Dean of the UCSF School of Dentistry, is a pioneering researcher on dental caries and caries-inhibitory mechanisms. His clinical trials have changed the curriculum of dental schools across the country. A native of New Zealand, Dr. Featherstone earned a bachelor of science degree at Victoria University of Wellington in New Zealand, a master of science at the University of Manchester in England, and a Ph.D. in chemistry at Victoria. He has called the United States home since 1980.

Anthony Pogrel, School of Dentistry (substituting for Featherstone)

Sam Hawgood, MD, BS, Chair of the UCSF Department of Pediatrics, currently serves as interim dean at the UCSF School of Medicine. Dr. Hawgood is physician in chief of UCSF Children's Hospital and a senior staff member of the Cardiovascular Research Institute. Dr. Hawgood graduated from the University of Queensland in Australia with first class honors. He completed his pediatric training at the Royal Children's Hospital in Brisbane, Australia, and his neonatal fellowship at the Queen Victoria Hospital in Melbourne, Australia, and at UCSF.

Talmadge King, MD, PHD, is chair of the UCSF Department of Medicine where he oversees a department of 550 doctors and scientists and more than 700 support staff. Dr. King's research interests include the pathogenesis, diagnosis and management of inflammatory and immunologic lung disease. He has co-authored eight books including the acclaimed reference book, Interstitial Lung Disease, now in its fourth edition, and Medical Management of Vulnerable & Underserved Patients, the foundational text for today's discussion.

Mary Anne Koda-Kimble, PharmD, is Professor and Dean of the School of Pharmacy at UCSF, where she also holds the Thomas J. Long Endowed Chair. She is a leader at the national level, and in 2000, became one of only nine pharmacists elected to the prestigious Institute of Medicine for major contributions to health and medicine. She has many publications, the best known of which is Applied Therapeutics, a text used by health professional students and practitioners throughout the world.

JoAnne Saxe, RN, MS, ANP, is a Health Sciences Clinical Professor in the School of Nursing. She is the Associate Director of the Adult Nurse Practitioner Program. In addition to teaching, Ms. Saxe practices at the Glide Health Services, which is a nurse-practitioner managed clinic that services medically under-served Adults in the Tenderloin District.
